INTERNAL — DO NOT HAND THIS OVER

Ali's C Store — what you need in the room

1048 Kern St, Taft, CA 93268 · October 2026 · Hand them the owner decision packet only. This file is your memory.

1. Before you walk in > October 5, 2026 correction. He is already first. Do not use the September line that he is hard to find, that hours are missing, or that 6-vs-85 is a directory count. He will search it. If your packet disagrees with his phone, you are done.

- Observed on Google for “smoke shop taft, ca,” area Taft: Ali's c store, 5.0 (8), tobacco shop, 1048 Kern St, (661) 745-4323, open until 10 PM, one photo, snippet “Best place in town for all your tobacco needs.” Then Fred's, 4.1 (85), 1006 6th St, (661) 765-4807, until 11 PM. Then Taft Discount Center, 4.3 (9), 1117 Kern St #3, (661) 763-0000, until 8 PM.
- Still unknown: whether he has claimed the listing (“Own this business?”), his opening hour, and whether a website is linked on the profile. The places panel did not show a site. Do not say “you have no website” as a fact. Say “I have not found one in your name.”
- Do not mention G&A Mini-Mart or Speed Stop. Taft Discount Center is the third result. Use that one.
- Do not quote a domain until you have checked `aliscstore.com` and `aliscstoretaft.com`.
- Leave the September owner audit at home. It is wrong as of this search.

2. Say this. Never say that.

Safe	False — do not say it
On Oct 5 you were first for that search: 5.0 from 8. Fred's was second: 4.1 from 85. Taft Discount Center third: 4.3 from 9.	“You're buried,” “hours aren't listed,” “you have 6 reviews,” “Fred's 85 is only on a directory.”
Phone on the listing is (661) 745-4323. Google shows you closing at 10 PM. Ask him if that hour is right. You do not know when he opens.	“You have no Google listing,” or “you will be number one.” He already was, once. It can change tomorrow.
No website in his name was found. Products on the old directory (cigarettes, vapes, tobacco, glass, accessories) stay unconfirmed.	Any product list, especially flavors, before he points at the shelf. Do not claim Fred's has no website. You did not recheck that today.
The job is control of the listing, a site he owns, and more reviews than 8. Distance, relevance, and prominence still decide the order.	“This keeps you #1,” “voice search,” “AI will recommend you,” “X new customers.”

> If he asks for a customer forecast: “I won't give you one. Shops that do are guessing. You'll see calls, direction requests, site visits, and reviews against a baseline. If those don't move, you stop after three months.”

3. The 15-minute meeting

1. Phone on the counter. He searches “smoke shop Taft.” You already know the likely result. Say it before he scores a point: “You're first. 5.0 from 8 reviews, open till 10. Fred's is second, 4.1 from 85. Taft Discount Center is third, 9 reviews. You win the stars. You lose the pile of proof. I have not found a website in your name.” If his screen differs, drop your numbers and use his.
2. Hand the decision packet. Point at the comparison table. Do not read it.

3. Close: “The 8-versus-85 gap is the review card. That's Get Chosen, $907 to start. Get Found is the listing and a site only, $440, and it leaves the 8 where it is. Which one?” Then stop talking.
4. If he circles A or B: collect hours, public phone, a date for photos and Google verification, and the first payment. No date and no payment means it is a maybe. Leave the packet. Do not start work.

4. Money rules

	Get Chosen	Get Found
Standard / his price	$3,400 / $2,720	$1,650 / $1,320
Start / launch / +30 days	907 / 907 / 906	440 / 440 / 440
Monthly after launch	$189, 3-month minimum, then month-to-month	$69, same minimum
Walk-away minimum	$3,287	$1,527
Year of monthly	$4,988	$2,148
Yearly care	$2,079 replaces $189×12. Setup still due. Year-one cash $4,799.	Do not invent a yearly price.

> Price floor. Do not cut Get Chosen below $2,720 or the monthly below $189. If he wants cheaper, drop scope to Get Found. Do not throw in review cards or the monthly report to “make Get Found feel bigger.” The founder discount is already in the packet. A second discount trains him to wait.

> $69 vs $189, if he asks what monthly buys. $69 keeps the site up, renews the domain, and covers one small text change a month. $189 adds two Google updates a month, review replies, photo swaps he sends you, citation fixes if listings drift, and the one-page report. Setup does not include those months.

Get Found's monthly scope was not written in the old audit. It is written in the owner packet now. If you sell Get Found, that scope is what you owe.

5. What he owns, in one breath

> “The domain is registered in your name. You keep the site files. The Google listing is on an email you control. I'm a manager, not the owner. You can remove me. After three months you can cancel the monthly. I don't refund setup for work that's already delivered.”

Google verification needs him present (video) or a postcard to the store. Say that up front so a postcard doesn't look like delay.

6. Objections

Answer in two sentences. Then ask the choice question again. Do not stack three benefits after a no.

“I'm already number one. Why would I pay?”

> “You are, for that search, today. Eight reviews is a thin lead over a shop with 85. You also don't control the listing until it's claimed on an email you own, and there's no site in your name if someone taps through. I'm not selling you a ranking you already have. I'm selling you the thing that makes 8 look like a real choice against 85, and a listing nobody else can edit.”

“I already have my regulars.”

> “They aren't the 8 reviews. The person comparing you to Fred's sees 5.0 versus 4.1 and then sees 8 versus 85. Regulars don't add the next review. The card on the counter does. That's Get Chosen, not Get Found.”

“Too expensive.” / “I can get a website for $300.”

> “You're already on the page. A $300 site doesn't put the listing in your name or add a single review. Get Found is listing plus site, $440 to start, $1,527 if you stop after three months, and it still doesn't ask for reviews. The review card is why Get Chosen costs more. I won't strip it and pretend it's the same work.”

“My nephew / a guy on Facebook will do it.”

> “If they will claim the listing with you, shoot the real store, match your name and hours everywhere, and report the numbers, use them. Most of those offers are a template and a login they keep. The domain and the Google account stay in your name here. Ask them who keeps the login.”

“Google is free. Why am I paying you?”

> “The listing is free. It is not filled out, and you don't control it. You're paying for the hours, photos, site, and the monthly upkeep. The ads you can't really buy for tobacco are the thing I'm not selling you.”

“I don't want a monthly fee.”

> “Then don't stay past three months. The minimum is so the listing and the other directories have time to match. After that it's month to month. If you want the care paid once, Get Chosen yearly is $2,079 on top of setup, and you still aren't locked after that year.”

“Will I be number one? How many new customers?”

> “You were first on October 5. I won't promise you stay there, and I won't invent a customer count. The baseline is 5.0 and 8 reviews. You'll see whether that count, the calls, and the direction requests move. If you need a guarantee to say yes, the answer is no.”

“Fred's has been here forever. I can't catch 85 reviews.”

> “You don't need to catch 85. You need more than 8, because 85 is what Google itself shows on Fred's, not a side website. Hours and a photo are already there. The missing piece is a counter card and you actually asking. Get Found does not include that card.”

“I don't trust you with my Google.”

> “Good. Don't give me the owner login. You create it or use one you already have. I get manager access. You can delete that access tonight if you want. If someone asks you for the only login, don't hire them.”

“What if I cancel? What if you disappear?”

> “You keep the domain, the files, and the listing. Setup covers delivered stages: start, launch, 30 days later. I don't get the next payment if that stage isn't done. Write my phone on the packet. If I don't answer, you already own the assets.”

“I need to think about it / talk to my brother.”

> “Take the packet. The number to decide on is $907 to start, or $440 if you want the small version. I'll be back [name the day]. If the brother wants to see Google, search ‘smoke shop Taft’ with him. I won't hold the founder price past that visit.”

Mean the deadline. If you extend it once, you've told him the price is fake.

“I tried advertising. It didn't work.” / “Facebook banned me.”

> “That's normal for tobacco and vape. Paid ads on Google and Facebook are restricted, so I'm not proposing ads. The free listing and your own site are what's left. Paying for ads you can't run is the waste. This isn't that.”

“I don't want my products online.” / “People will copy my prices.”

> “Then we don't publish prices or a full shelf list. The site needs hours, address, phone, directions, and the legal categories you want found for. Product detail is optional. California also means we will not advertise flavored tobacco or vape the state doesn't allow, and the page says 21+.”

“Don't bother my customers for reviews.”

> “Then pick Get Found. Get Chosen includes a card, not a script you have to perform, and not a coupon for a review. Google will remove reviews you pay for or filter. Asking is allowed. Bribing is how you lose the listing.”

“Can I pay cash, all at once, for a better price?”

> “Cash is fine. All at once is fine. The price stays $2,720 or $1,320. The three payments are there so you don't pay for launch before launch. Paying early doesn't buy a fourth discount.”

“Just do the Google listing. Skip the website.”

> “I don't sell the listing alone. Without a site, the other directories keep describing you, and there's nowhere to send the listing. Get Found is the smallest job I'll start: listing plus site.”

“The 20% off means your price was made up.”

> “The standard rate is what the next shop pays. You're getting it off because I want a real local example and an honest review, including a bad one if the work is bad. If you don't want to be the example, pay the standard rate. I won't discount twice.”

“Can you throw in Instagram / a POS / online ordering?”

> “No. This packet is findability. Ordering and inventory are a different system, and I won't staple them on to close. If you want that later, we scope it after this is live.”

7. Compliance, said once

- Minimum age 21. The site says so.
- California restricts most flavored tobacco and vape. Do not write flavor copy, menthol promotions, or a product grid until he points at what he legally sells. You are not his lawyer. If he asks “is this flavor legal,” tell him to confirm with his supplier or the state, and leave it off the site until he does.
- No review incentives, no review gating, no fake reviews. One Google policy violation can wipe the listing you just built.

8. Close and walk away

> Close: “A is Get Chosen, $907 today. B is Get Found, $440 today. C is not now. Which letter?”

> Walk away when: he wants a ranking guarantee, a second discount, your ownership of the Google login, flavored-product ads, or paid reviews. Also walk if he won't do the in-store verification. You cannot finish the P0 item without him.

Leave-behind: owner decision packet only. If he says not now, book the return day before you leave the counter. No day on the calendar means the meeting failed.
